

COVID-19 Update for Physicians

As the ultimate healthcare-enabling research organization, the mission of Elligo Health Research® has always been to bring clinical research directly to clinical healthcare, solving patient access challenges by enabling research as a care option. Through our existing capabilities, we immediately began contributing to ongoing, crucial efforts to fight the COVID-19 pandemic. We are one of the few companies to project manage and staff drive-thru COVID-19 test sites and we have been doing so successfully since mid-March.

As the response to the pandemic evolves, Elligo remains committed to this mission of expanding healthcare access to those in need and of improving our understanding of COVID-19 epidemiology.

Elligo can provide a full spectrum of solutions to help you manage your COVID-19 testing effort, on-site and off-site, including:

- Integration and oversight, including executive involvement and remote physician supervision
- 48-hour turnaround from signed contract to Elligo staff on the ground, anywhere in the country
- Access to staff and partnerships with national labs to support your needs once samples are collected
- Experience-based, site-specific recommendations on workflow, standard operating procedures, protocols, and staff to achieve process improvements that will improve efficacy and safety
- A support team for your current medical staff by augmentation with experienced, ready-to-go medical practitioners including registered nurses, physicians, medical technicians, and drive-thru test site project managers
- Clinical consulting from a physician with experience in current COVID-19 PPE guidelines and considerations, as well as nasopharyngeal swab specimen collection and other testing methods as appropriate (home nasopharyngeal swab specimen drop off, finger prick blood test, and others)

Our core model at Elligo is paperless, enabling us to support you anywhere in the United States. We stand ready to team with you and all our healthcare communities to tackle this unprecedented challenge. At this time, however, the Elligo solution does not include:

- Funding for supplies and/or testing sites
- Testing kits and other supplies needed at the site, including PPE

As clinical trials for COVID-19 evolve, Elligo understands the need to work efficiently, safely, and inclusively to successfully provide access to testing and treatments for patients and to provide relief for workers who need it. We appreciate the opportunity to partner with you to provide vital COVID-19 testing.

About Elligo Health Research®

Elligo Health Research, a healthcare-enabling research organization, uses electronic health records and the trusted patient and physician relationship to ensure all patients have access to clinical research as a care option. Powered by our Goes Direct® approach and novel IntElligo® Research Stack clinical technology, our team provides access to the best healthcare experts, patients, and research technologies. We engage physicians and patients who otherwise would not participate in clinical research and accelerate the development of new pharmaceutical, biotechnology, and medical device and diagnostic products.
